

JACOB HOOK

CLASS OF 2015

"It was at Trinity High School helping design the girls and boys basketball yearbook pages when I realized that I wanted to get involved with sports media. It was a small task for Mrs. Rhodes and the rest of the yearbook staff, but I realized how much I enjoyed expressing creativity through sports. After graduating from Trinity, I spent two years at the University of Louisville. While I was there, I dabbled in a few areas of study like marketing and economics, but after an internship at a sports radio station, I realized sports media was my true calling. After two years as a Louisville Cardinal, I transferred to Texas Christian University. There, I majored in sports broadcasting and minored in journalism. I was a part of the school newspaper and radio station where I covered live TCU sports on air and through print. My experience at Trinity, TCU and UofL have led me all across the nation. I've broadcasted in Texas, New Jersey, and even South Dakota, and I've gotten the opportunity to work with some incredible NBA athletes like De'Aaron Fox and John Wallace. I currently work as an on-air reporter and weekend sports anchor for WEVV in Evansville, and nothing makes me happier than when I get to come down to Whitesville and cover the Raiders. I can't imagine where my life would be if I wouldn't have gotten to spend some incredible years at Trinity High School and in the Whitesville community."
